

Call for Special Session

Financial Literacy

Chair: Andreea Stoian (Bucharest University of Economic Studies)

Research in the field of financial literacy and financial education has surged recently, driven by events such as the Global Financial Crisis and the COVID-19 pandemic, which highlighted people's financial fragility. However, most findings focus on countries like the United States or advanced European nations. Data remains scarce, and the study of financial literacy lies at the intersection of several disciplines, including economics, psychology, sociology, and neuroscience.

We organize this special session with the aim of bringing together researchers who share similar interests and creating networks that will help advance the study of financial literacy.
